Recycling Used Motor Oil

How Much Used Oil Ends Up Here?

Recycling your used motor oil keeps it out of our creeks, lagoons, ocean and even the ground water. In many cases, that means keeping it out of our drinking water, off our beaches, and away from wildlife. We all share the responsibility of protecting our environment and keeping our waters safe.

Household Hazardous Waste Facilities

Certified Collection Centers

These are businesses that will accept uncontaminated oil in appropriate reusable 5-gallon or smaller size clean plastic containers from citizens and put that used oil into the recycling chain. They will pay you a recycling fee of 4¢ per quart upon request. Call for store hours.
